For another year, BMA has been recognized as Elite in Brazil by GCR 100, a guide published by Global Competition Review that highlights leading competition law practices worldwide.

The publication provides an overview of law firms' work across different jurisdictions, based on qualitative and quantitative analyses that consider the relevance and complexity of their work. In this edition, GCR 100 highlights the structure of BMA's Competition Law team, led by Barbara Rosenberg and comprising seven partners and ten associates.

The guide also highlights the breadth of the team's practice, which advises clients on merger control and anticompetitive conduct matters, as well as competition issues involving regulatory proceedings and public tenders. The publication also notes the firm's involvement in significant transactions reviewed by CADE, as well as matters involving investigations and administrative and judicial proceedings.

BMA's continued presence among the firms ranked as Elite reinforces the consistency and breadth of its Competition Law practice, particularly in highly complex matters in the Brazilian market.
