With more than 15 years' experience, Fernanda is known for her work in administrative and civil environmental litigation, management of contaminated areas, and resolution of environmental conflicts. Over the course of her career, she has earned recognition both for her experience in government, as head of the Legal Department of the State of São Paulo Environmental Company - CETESB, and in private practice, where she acted in cases of national and international importance. Her practice focuses on management of contaminated areas and infrastructure projects in the energy, mining, steelworks, manufacturing, basic sanitation, agribusiness and real estate sectors.

"The environmental agenda has been rapidly gaining ground and having Fernanda Tanure join us reflects the heightened interest in preserving the environment and strengthening ESG policies. The world expects Brazil to adopt an increasingly protective stance with respect to our natural resources, and our country has shown that we have the capacity to monitor use of the environment and its resources, enforce the law and take a leadership role in sustainable policies," explains Márcio Pereira, one of our Environmental Law and Climate Change partners.

We give a very warm welcome to Fernanda, whose experience reinforces our commitment to developing our business in line with our ESG strategy and our multidisciplinary approach to delivering excellence.
