Recognition BMA Inspiration

Once again this year, BMA has been highlighted in the Pro Bono Leading Lights survey organized by Latin Lawyer in conjunction with the Vance Center. The survey's objective is to encourage and recognize law firms that work to strengthen the Pro Bono culture in Latin America by democratizing access to legal services, free of charge, for those who need them.

At BMA, our pro bono work is conducted through BMA Inspiração, with the help of dedicated practitioners, offering legal support in a wide range of areas to NGOs, registered social organizations (Oscips) and other institutions, for social actions directed to education, social entrepreneurship, and culture.

Recognition as a Pro Bono Leading Light strengthens our commitment to give back to society through actions that bring about profound and lasting change, even in unpredictable years like 2020.

It is extremely gratifying to be part of this movement and to use our expertise to generate social impact, in the conviction that solidarity transforms realities.
