BMA has been recognized in Pro Bono: Leading Lights 2026, an initiative of Latin Lawyer and the Cyrus R. Vance Center for International Justice, highlights law firms that are helping advance the culture of pro bono service across Latin America.

The survey considers factors such as firms' commitment to pro bono work, the resources they have put in place to support those efforts, and the impact of the work carried out by their lawyers.

For more than a decade, BMA InspirAção, our pro bono and volunteer program, has brought together initiatives focused on expanding access to justice and generating positive social impact through legal services.

This recognition reflects the dedication of everyone involved, who contribute their time, expertise, and experience in support of a wide range of causes and organizations.
