Personalized legal support for French investors in Brazil

Brazil and France have a solid commercial relationship: France is one of the main European to invest in Brazil. But investing in Brazil requires an understanding of the significant differences that can exist in the legislation, jurisdictions, regulations, and commercial practices of the two countries. Cultural and linguistic barriers, along with socio-political contexts, can make Franco-Brazilian commercial relationships and investment more complex.

BMA's French Desk was designed precisely to answer the needs of French investors in Brazil, offering personalised legal support that takes into account their interests and the business they conduct in this country.

Led by Dominique Walter, our French-Brazilian consultant whose practice focuses on M&A and Corporate Law, BMA's French Desk brings together lawyers specialising in various areas of the law, all with extensive experience in providing legal advice and support in international matters, and who have advised numerous French companies in transactions and negotiations in Brazil and Europe.

Our team has close ties to France and its culture, offering our clients fluent French speakers who are aware of the specific requirements and business concerns of French investors.

BMA acts for clients from various sectors of the economy, often as the first point of contact for clients interested in investing in Brazil.

We also advise French investors already established in this country that are looking for innovative, personalised legal services that contribute to the development of their business in the Brazilian market.
