Professional experience

Carlos Frederico's practice covers a variety of sectors, such as oil and gas, electrical and renewable energy, BPO, real estate, retail, and telecommunications. Together with other partners, he currently coordinates the infrastructure and natural resources group.

In addition to broad experience in complex M&A deals involving the sectors indicated above, and work in transactions involving the Brazilian capital market, in recent years Carlos Frederico has focused his practice on the energy and infrastructure sectors (including O&G). His experience in these sectors covers not just complex contracts (including EPC contracts), but also an understanding of the other demands that businesses in the sector face, enabling him to provide complete support to clients, working in conjunction with the firm's practice areas.

Carlos Frederico is a member of BMA's Strategy Committee, participating actively in questions related to the firm's management.

He has lectured in Corporate Law at the IBMEC law school in Rio de Janeiro and has spoken at various national and international events. He is the author of articles on Corporate Law, Infrastructure, and Tax Law.
